

WorldSkills UK Training Manager – specialist skills

Please review these in tandem with application guidance in the Training Managing information pack.

WorldSkills skill no. & competition	Specialist technical skills
20 Bricklaying	A Training Manager for the WorldSkills Bricklaying competition would need a range of specialist technical skills, including: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Advanced Bricklaying Techniques: Mastery of complex masonry tasks, such as building intricate structures (arches, chimneys, fireplaces, decorative walls, etc.) with an awareness of all joint finishes and use of current materials and approaches.2. Setting Out and Layout: Accurately marking out and measuring for bricklaying projects, including straight lines, right angles, curves, and openings.3. Masonry Construction: Erecting various types of masonry structures, including both load-bearing walls and cladding, using brick, block, and local materials, to a high level of accuracy in dimensions and alignments.4. Health and Safety: Ensuring safety on-site, with knowledge of health and safety legislation and able to access relevant building code specifications and best practices for health, safety, and welfare in the workplace.5. Problem Solving: Ability to troubleshoot and knowledge of how to adapt techniques for different site conditions and challenges.6. Work organisation and management of resource: Use of sustainability measures applied to the use of 'green' materials, waste management, cost management and workflow planning7. Working Relationships: Strong collaboration and communication skills with colleagues, sector network, and other related sector colleagues.8. Quality Control: Ensuring the high-quality standard of completed work, maintaining precision and attention to detail. More details are available here WorldSkills Occupational Standards - Bricklaying